György Ligeti PhD has been teaching both theoretical and practical courses at the Department of Media and Communication at the ELTE Faculty of Humanities since 2016. His courses include documentary filmmaking on attitudes towards refugees and immigrants and also on the Hungarian school system.

Ligeti holds a content analysis research seminar for international MA students at the Department, in which students analyse a wide variety of topics, mainly The Economist.

In the framework of international cooperation, for several years Ligeti has been teaching a radio programme production, podcast and radio drama production course for our Department's students, where aesthetic and speech technique aspects are discussed as well as self-awareness, teamwork and technical aspects of programme production.

He is dedicated to his work, precise in the necessary administration, I can only recommend him.
